

Russian ambassador to the United Nations exposes the UK's history of warmongering and subjugation of the vast majority of countries in the world

Ambassador Nebenzya did not mention the exposé of American journalist Lillian Scott Troy on May 13, 1913 of the secret British Pilgrims Society plan to ANNEX AMERICA¹ while they also planned on double-crossing Christian Czar Nicholas II (Queen Victoria's nephew) and installing their hand-picked groom: Bolshevik Vladimir Lenin. Note: The Pilgrims fabricated both Bolshevik and Maoist communism to establish a godless Babylonian merchant-banking underclass of cheap labor and limitless resources.

[NOTE TO READERS: We have footnoted hard proofs corroborating centuries of British treachery exposed by Ambassador Nebenzya.

"Mr. Speaker, for those who are familiar with the history of the United Kingdom, the country, the history of the United Kingdom, their long-standing interference in the Ukraine, the culmination of which we have mentioned above, has not come as a surprise.

After all, pitting neighbors against each other, sowing discord between nations and peoples, and then supporting one of the sides of artificially created conflicts is something that the United Kingdom has relished to do for centuries, and is really good at – all your former colonies can tell you about it in colorful detail.

By the way, out of the current 193 members of the UN, only 22 states can boast that they have never been invaded by Great Britain or waged war with this country. And my country is no exception here, the last such invasion was the British intervention following the revolution of 1917, when various predators and vultures tried to tear Russia apart.²

But we stood our ground, we went through the hardship, grew stronger and now we have to counter another indirect intervention by NATO members who are fighting against Russia in Ukraine, including Great Britain.

This is how we can view not only the continued pumping of the Kiev regime with weapons and its supply of intelligence but also the presence of British instructors and mercenaries hundreds of whom have already been eliminated, as well as the attempts of British specialists to localize the production of drones, missiles and un-crewed boats in Ukraine.

We understand that even in the 21st century it is extremely difficult for the UK to leave Ukraine and Russia to themselves it is the blood of those colonizers who rampaged in Asia, Africa and Europe for centuries that predetermines the nature of UK's actions today.

We all know that for 250 years, the British Empire brutally and cynically suppressed the resistance of its colonies, resorted to forced assimilation and racial discrimination, forgetting about basic human values and the rights of the peoples under its control.³

It was the peaceful citizens of colonized countries who paid with their lives and freedom for the imperial ambitions of the colonial power.

I would suffice to recall at least the ethnic cleansing in Ireland, where after the British conquest remained only 850,000 people out of more than 1.5 million.⁴

And during the Second Boer War⁵ at the turn of the 19th and the 20th centuries, it was the British who first invented concentration camps⁶ and drove civilians into them to make sure that they would not help the Boer army. How many people perished then?—nobody knows [correction: On Jun. 17, 1901, the UK Parliament first reported death rates of incarcerated blacks and whites, including women and children],⁷ because the British did not consider the indigenous population of Africa as human beings and did not document losses among Africans whatsoever.

We do know though that in Kenya, after the Mau-Mau rebellion the British unleashed mass repression, killing about 300 thousand representatives of this people and another 1,500,000 people were driven into camps and turned into slaves.⁸

India also suffered enormous damage during the period of British rule, whereby from 15 to 29 million people fell victim to famine engineered by Great Britain.⁹

The consequences of the actions of former colonizers resonate in the modern world even today.

Even though colonial empires are formally a thing of the past, the old methods—pressure, manipulation and interference in sovereign affairs—are still being used and simply have new forms.

Britain is not an exception here, but rather a “trendsetter.” Thus, suffering from phantom pains, longing for empire over which “the sun never sets” and feeling nostalgic for the lost dominance, Great Britain (along with its like-minded Franco-Saxon associates [France, Germany]) resorts to blackmailing and sanctions, the British are trying to overthrow unpleasant governments and overthrows unwanted regimes through “color revolutions,” with Ukraine being one of the victims of such revolutions in 2014.¹⁰

We say all this to show that you have no moral rights to accuse and reproach my country of anything.”
